What this tells you:

This graph shows only one dimension – cognitive - meaning that you have an intellectual understanding about this aspect. We don't have enough data to report on your behaviors or feelings about this topic.

YOUR SMI RESPONSES INDICATE THAT you have a clear understanding that we are all interconnected, even in non-obvious ways, and that no one is really fully independent.

We cannot comment on how your thinking impacts your behaviors and feelings, since you indicated (by choosing "neither") that you did not find yourself represented by any of the available options.

/THOUGHTS TO PONDER WHEN YOU CONSIDER THE SM:

The polarities of independence vs. interconnectedness and competition vs. collaboration are of particular relevance when focusing on sustainability. As you well know, the environmental and social challenges are complex and multidimensional, making it impossible for any one person to solve on their own. It is only through collective thinking, action and the collaboration of multiple stakeholders that we will be able to develop alternatives. (This, by the way, makes sustainability a great opportunity for contributing personal skills to a larger cause).

While certain cultures have a collectivistic framework, most of the western-northern culture - widely exported and globalized - is individualistic and celebrates personal achievement.

Do you experience this unspoken expectation in your daily life - to be independent, to outperform others, to be self-reliant or perhaps to demonstrate your value in competitive settings? Have you sensed the contradiction between this paradigm and your understanding of interconnectedness?

How realistic is the concept of autonomy and independence?

/HOW ABOUT YOU TRY:

Let's pause for a moment: Can you name one achievement that was purely and authentically your own without another person playing any role in it?

How do you deal with this tension?

When we see interconnectedness, we understand the importance of diversity, and our decisions and actions become more inclusive, which contributes to the sustainability of the whole.
