

/WHAT IS ASSESSED HERE:
HOW YOU THINK ABOUT THE MEANING, ROLE AND VALUE OF
MINDFULNESS AND ITS PRACTICE, AND HOW YOU FEEL ABOUT IT.

What this tells you:

This graph shows two dimensions, the behavioral and affective. This means that you connect emotionally with this aspect, and act upon it, perhaps without a full understanding of why it is important. You may find it interesting to deepen your understanding of this principle.

YOUR SMI RESPONSES INDICATE THAT you have a pragmatic approach to life.

You are very aware that society rewards action and its ensuing achievements, rather than inaction and passivity, which is kind of what mindfulness practice seems to you. You may be aware that other cultures have different behavioral patterns from the one in which you live, but you are cognizant of the importance of adapting to the culture to which you belong. As the saying goes, "when in Rome do as the Romans do".

You realize there may be an impact on our health and wellness, like being in a race to pursue the moving targets of our goals.

You indicate that you have discovered activities that quiet your mind, and help you gain some inner peace. You may not make these a regular practice, but when you engage in them, you can recognize the positive effect they have on your wellbeing. At the same time, it seems quite challenging for you to make the time and space for these moments.

/THINK ABOUT HOW YOU CAN FURTHER LEVERAGE YOUR STRENGTHS AND MANAGE SOME OF THE LIMITATIONS WHICH MAY BE HOLDING YOU BACK:

Studies show the physical and emotional consequences of a constant focus on doing while overlooking the more profound dimensions of "being," such as reflection, spiritual or religious practices, time to recharge and find ourselves, and time to connect with our deeper self.

You have experienced it firsthand: When you allow some time to nurture this neglected part of yourself, you experience a positive impact on how you feel about yourself, and how you interact with others. At the same time, it seems quite challenging to make the time and space for those moments.

Sometimes you hear people say "you should do less, you should relax, you should take time for yourself", and these suggestions may sound anywhere from unreal to ridiculous from your perspective, since you are the one living with the challenges. Of course you know what you 'should' do, but you are doing your best all the time.

Pausing and stepping away from our task clears our mind, and we can get back with renewed energy. Is this something you remember to do when you need it? If not, how could you help yourself remember it just in time?

/HOW ABOUT YOU TRY:

So here are some questions for you to contemplate.

Has it ever occurred to you that the fact that “everyone lives like this” may not necessarily make it ideal? Have you ever reflected on the high value our world gives to consumption, linking “who we are” with “what we have or own”? How do these thoughts align with your experience, and with your values? Does your reality reflect the priorities that are important for you? If not, what are some small changes you can make?

Mindfulness is being fully present, experiencing connectedness with all that is. Mindfulness enhances awareness and compassion, and predisposes to social and environmental actions.

/THOUGHTS TO PONDER WHEN YOU CONSIDER THE SM:

From the perspective of a sustainability mindset, mindfulness is both a key practice and an amazing result. Research has shown a direct link between individuals that have some contemplative practices not just with their physical and psychological health, but also with the emergence of feelings of empathy and compassion.

This creates a disposition towards positive social and environmental actions, and the resulting satisfaction feeds a positive reinforcing loop. In other words, the better we feel about something we’ve done, the more we seek to repeat the experience.

When we access and display a more balanced version of ourselves, we convey an unspoken message to the people with whom we interact, not just by what we say or how we behave, but through our attitude and energy. This has a proven positive influence on others, as science has identified with the phenomenon of “emotional contagion.”

In other words, when we develop a sense of peace for ourselves, we are also radiating a gift of peace to the world. What are some ideas to try out?
