

/WHAT IS ASSESSED HERE:
HOW YOU THINK ABOUT THE MEANING, ROLE AND VALUE OF
MINDFULNESS AND ITS PRACTICE, AND HOW YOU FEEL ABOUT IT.

What this tells you:

This graph shows that your approach to the assessed topic is both cognitive and affective, but you are not necessarily translating what you know and feel into actions. You might use this information to explore new habits and daily changes for a sustainability purpose.

YOUR SMI RESPONSES INDICATE THAT you have a clear understanding of the world we live in and the importance of mindfulness.

You realize that consumption is rewarded, linking “who we are” with “what we do, have, or own”. You see this materialistic pattern in society, with its consequences on how we have to keep busy doing things, seeking to make money to be able to belong, feel respected and valued. You realize the unfortunate impact that this implicit message has on our health and well-being. It’s like being trapped in a race to pursue an elusive and short-lived happiness.

However, you are also comfortable focusing on what you need to get done, according to your own expectations and goals, or the demands you receive from your social surrounding. You have a very pragmatic approach and it is already a lot to keep you busy; frequently you don’t even have enough time to accomplish all you intend to do.

/THINK ABOUT HOW YOU CAN FURTHER LEVERAGE YOUR STRENGTHS AND MANAGE SOME OF THE LIMITATIONS WHICH MAY BE HOLDING YOU BACK:

Given what you notice about the “achievement race” that we live in, how does this align with your experience, and with your values? Does your reality reflect the priorities that are important for you? If not, what are some small changes you might make?

At times, you seem to experience the tension and stress that comes with the reality you are living. According to your choices in the questionnaire, you have discovered a way to pause and re-center, experiencing a positive impact on how you feel about yourself, and how you interact with others. It is not clear what strategies you employ to regain your inner calm.

Pausing and stepping away from our tasks clears our mind, and we can return with renewed energy. Is this something you remember to do when you need it? If not, how could you help yourself remember it more regularly, or just in time?

Studies show the physical and emotional consequences of a constant focus on doing while overlooking the more profound dimensions of “being,” such as reflection, spiritual or religious practices, time to recharge and find ourselves, and time to connect with our deeper self. It may be as simple as going for a walk, listening to your preferred music, dancing, practicing a sport, playing with children or your pet, gardening or creating art.

If these are some of the activities that help you unwind, you are on the right path already. They are called “contemplative practices” because they engage a different part of our brain, creating a “buffer zone” that permits releasing tensions, and many times we end up seeing our challenges in a different light.

/THOUGHTS TO PONDER WHEN YOU CONSIDER THE SM:

From the perspective of a sustainability mindset, mindfulness is both a key practice and an amazing result. Research has shown a direct link between individuals that have some contemplative practices not just with their physical and psychological health, but also with the emergence of feelings of empathy and compassion.

This creates a disposition towards positive social and environmental actions, and the resulting satisfaction feeds a positive reinforcing loop. In other words, the better we feel about something we’ve done, the more we seek to repeat the experience.

When we access and display a more balanced version of ourselves, we convey an unspoken message to the people with whom we interact, not just by what we say or how we behave, but through our attitude and energy. This has a proven positive influence on others, as science has identified with the phenomenon of “emotional contagion.”

In other words, when we develop a sense of peace for ourselves, we are also radiating a gift of peace to the world. You already know that.

/HOW ABOUT YOU TRY:

What is mindfulness for you today: Is it a practice or a does it form part of your lifestyle?

What would need to be true for you to take it to the next level, and what might that look like for you? How easy is it for you to “catch yourself” in the moment when you are not fully present, not mindfully listening, or letting your emotional reactions control you, as opposed to your wiser self?

Mindfulness is being fully present, experiencing connectedness with all that is. Mindfulness enhances awareness and compassion, and predisposes to social and environmental actions.
