/THOUGHTS TO PONDER WHEN YOU CONSIDER THE SM:

Research has shown that individuals who engage in activities of service to the community, volunteering or some kind of initiative for the greater good have a higher sense of wellbeing than those who do not. This includes benefits to health, feelings of joy, increased self-esteem, and personal satisfaction.

In contrast, focusing on the extreme demands of our life sometimes takes a toll on our health, our mood, creating tension or anxiety, disrupts our sleep or impacts how we interact with others.

The research regarding core aspects for a sustainability mindset identified the role of activities intentionally done for the "greater good." The state of our planet is such that it requires each of us to step up and play an active role in shaping a better world.

The actions needed, whether large or small, share a similar result: they provide us with a feeling of joy, which then we want to replicate to feel good again, thus creating a reinforcing loop. Interestingly, we tend to think that we need to take care of ourselves first, before helping others, but the facts show that when we do small acts of kindness for others, we feel much better ourselves.

Don't get intimidated by grandiose words like 'changing the world' or having a life mission or purpose. In fact, each small action of kindness already has an impact that we may never be able to imagine. That is also changing the world, one interaction at a time.

*Defining our purpose provides an unconscious compass, and when it is grounded in values of our higher self,
we actively shape a better world.*
